1.1 Consider the Perspectives of Others

Unit Overview

Description

In his best-selling book, Emotional Intelligence, Daniel Goleman argues that EQ matters more in life than IQ. This unit introduces students to several strategies designed to develop a crucial component of emotional intelligence and positive relationships: the ability to understand the perspective of others.

The unit targets the following competencies: use communication & social skills to effectively interact with others; use social awareness & interpersonal skills to establish & maintain positive relationships; exercise flexibility & willingness to make necessary compromises to accomplish a common goal; recognize feelings and perspectives of others.

The four lessons provide students an introductory experience with the following Power2Achieve Tools: P2A Social Networking, P2A Prepare-2-Communicate, P2A Win-Win Negotiation, P2A Portable Compact-4-Excellence.
